How to Choose a PCP for your Newborn

Within 48 hours after the birth of your newborn you should:

- Choose a PCP to coordinate your newborn's medical care. Your doctor should provide you with a list of PCPs in your area. You should choose a PCP who is board certified in pediatrics and who is board certified in neonatology.

If you do not select a PCP for your newborn, another medically necessary care will be covered at the time of birth.

Figure 1. Schematic diagram of the experimental setup. The subject is seated in a chair and views the screen through a mirror. The screen displays the target and the starting position of the hand. The hand is moved from the starting position to the target position. The distance between the starting position and the target is the reach distance. The distance between the starting position and the mirror is the viewing distance. The distance between the mirror and the target is the target distance. The image shows a document page with a dark, textured background. On the left side, there is a large, dark, rectangular area that appears to be a header or a large stamp, containing some faint, illegible text. The main body of the page contains several lines of text, which are also faint and illegible. There are some small, dark, rectangular areas scattered throughout the page, possibly representing stamps or markers. The overall appearance is grainy and high-contrast, suggesting a photocopy or a scan of a physical document.
